University of Notre Dame Hesburgh Libraries

Librarian-in-Residence Program

The Hesburgh Libraries and the Kresge Law Library at the University of Notre Dame offer early-career librarians the opportunity for professional-level experience in academic librarianship via their Librarian-in-Residence Program. The purpose of the residency is to interest early-career librarians or librarians new to research libraries who are members of historically underrepresented groups in professional learning and service by launching their careers at the Hesburgh Libraries. Resident positions include benefits coverage, paid leave and funding to support professional development activities.

The two-year appointment is designed to provide an immersion in academic librarianship, an opportunity to focus on areas of interest, and funding to support professional engagement at the national level. By participating in the program, individuals will demonstrate skills at a professional level, develop a professional network, and be prepared for future career opportunities.

Throughout the appointment, the Resident Librarian will gain meaningful work experience within the Kresge Law Library and throughout the Hesburgh Libraries. Areas of priority for the Hesburgh Libraries for the academic year 2016-2017 include:

- Assessment
- Project Management
- Space Planning

In addition, he/she will work independently and with a mentor to develop a research proposal with the goal of presenting the findings at a professional conference or in a professional journal. The resident will be afforded an opportunity to participate on a Library committee, and if applicable, task forces. He/she will develop collegial relationships with Hesburgh Libraries and Kresge Law Library employees, other University of Notre Dame faculty and administrators, and colleagues at peer institutions. Residents will become involved in relevant national and regional professional organizations. The resident will acquire first-hand experience with research and scholarship, service to the Libraries, and service to the profession. The resident reports administratively to the Organizational Development Librarian.
Required Qualifications:

- Graduate degree from an ALA-accredited program in Library and Information Science before September 2016
- General knowledge of physical and digital information resources
- Demonstrated commitment to diversity in the workplace or community
- Excellent written and oral communication skills
