The Fritz and Ellen Holzgrefe Family Library Endowment allows the Hesburgh Libraries to take advantage of special opportunities to acquire rare resources. In addition, it enables the libraries to embark on special projects in support of teaching and research and to remain on the cutting edge of technology, bringing electronic resources to students’ desktops and participating in consortial relationships that favorably affect the cost of such resources. Finally, it allows library faculty and staff to continue to be leaders in library and information science nationally and internationally.

Frederick J. “Fritz” Holzgrefe Jr. (’64), is president of Agrivest, Inc., a swine management and service company in Waynetown, Indiana. After graduating from Notre Dame, Fritz joined Ralston Purina International in 1966 and worked in various management and sales positions in Central and South America and Germany. He transferred to Ralston’s animal feed division and worked there for two years before starting his own swine production company. He and his wife, Ellen, are the parents of two Notre Dame graduates: Fritz III and his spouse, Mary Jo (Fogerty), are members of the Class of 1990; daughter Regis and her husband, James Watson Jr., are 1997 graduates.
