The John and Mary Meany
Endowed Collection in American History

Both John and Mary Meany spent their undergraduate years in the Notre Dame-Saint Mary’s community, graduating in 1967. John returned to pursue a law degree from the University, graduating in 1970. He also earned a master of science in accounting from DePaul University in 1981. The Meanys are active in many charitable organizations and serve as directors of the Frank C. and Marion C. Callahan Foundation. John is an attorney in Chicago and serves on Notre Dame’s Advisory Council for the Hesburgh Libraries. The Meanys are members of the Edward Frederick Sorin Society. They have two children.
