A member of Notre Dame’s Advisory Council for the Hesburgh Libraries, John F. “Jack” Nash is a committed friend of the University. Jack attended Indiana University, receiving a bachelor’s degree in 1943 and a graduate degree in educational administration. He began his career with First Bank and Trust Company in South Bend, Indiana, moving through the company’s ranks from new business representative to senior vice president, secretary, and chief lending officer. He later served as president, chief executive officer, and director of the Bank of Palm Beach and from there became chairman, president, chief executive officer, and director of the American National Bank and Trust Company in St. Paul, Minnesota.

In 1969, he became vice chairman, secretary, and director of American Bancorporation, Inc., remaining there until 1977. At that time, he established John F. Nash Associates, a group of management, financial, and real estate consultants. Jack served as a member of the Advisory Council Executive Program for Small Companies within the Graduate School of Business at Stanford University. He is a director of the Bush Foundation and a trustee of the St. Paul Foundation. He has two daughters: Valerie, who passed away in 2001, and Peggy Ann.

With the support of the Nash Endowment, the faculty and staff of the Hesburgh Libraries are assured development opportunities to remain current in technological expertise, management, preservation, public or technical service, and others areas. The endowment also supports the libraries’ staff recognition program.

Jack has also established an endowment at the Named level.
