Harry L. Troy ('50) owns the Troy Company, Inc., a plumbing contractor serving southeastern Wisconsin. He and his wife, Colleen, are residents of Franklin, Wisconsin, and have a son, Gary ('73). They also have two grandsons, one of whom is a Notre Dame graduate. At the University, Harry and Colleen are members of the Edward Frederick Sorin Society Founder’s Circle and the Stephen Theodore Badin Guild.

Because of the Troy Endowment, the Hesburgh Libraries can acquire critically important reference sources and monographic works. They are able to enhance their collections in cognitive psychology, an area in which resources are exceedingly expensive, since many cross over into the neurological realm and assume the astronomical costs of medical materials. They are also able to meet the needs of researchers in the areas of developmental and social psychology, where supporting the growing emphasis on aging had strained the libraries’ ability to keep up with materials on childhood and adolescence.
